WHEELING, FEBRUARY 23, 1802.

THE approaching contest is rendered especially important by reason of the in-dustriat and financial policies of the Government being at stake. The popular de-cision on these issues is of great moment and will be of far-reaching consequence.-James G. Blaine.

Republican League Convention. Advices from Parkersburg clearly foreshadow a great Republican gathering in that city to-day-greater than the one which met in Wheeling four years ago, when the League was organized. One of the encouraging features of to-day's convention will be the presence of many delegates from remote sections of the state. In fact it looks as if every county in the state will have a voice in the deliberations of the convention. The signs are propitious for the Republican party in West Virginia, and that the theft of the governorship will be fittingly and emphatically rebuked. The League convention has a work peculiarly its own to perform outside of the party organization, and we know that the members of the convention will devise some means of accomplishing the end desired.

Of course the enforced absence of Secretary of War Elkins and Commissioner Mason will be a great disappointment, but where so many are gathered together in such a cause, and where all are so terribly in earnest, it will not weigh heavily after the band begins to

A Thought for the Future.

Such observances as those of yesterday are not encouraged as they should be in Wheeling. Pittsburgh, with every other large and progressive city, shows her appreciation of all such opportunities to do well for herself while emphasizing the significance of a legal holid y. The celebration which yesterday drew hundreds of Wheeling people into the streets might just as well have drawn thousands from the surrounding towns if the city had the public spirit and the wise policy which realizes the advantage of such gatherings. Pittsburgh was filled with strangers from all directions yesterday. Ask any Wheeling man who was in the throng there how much money he left in the Smoky City; and then reflect what it would mean if all the money spent there had been kept in Wheeling, and as much more drawn into the town, by wise concert of action. The sordid view of such a patriotic occasion as that of yesterday is the wrong view, of course, but there cannot be any legitimate objection to making of such a celebration a more impressive and incidentally more profitable affair. It is to be hoped that such observances in the future will have the co-operation of more of the people, and will therefore be all the more creditable to the community, and more effective in impressing on the minds of the young and of others who need even more the lesson of patriotism, the significance of the days set aside as holidays because they mark some great epoch or great idea in American history.

One of Hill's Brazen Schemes.

Having run out of political ammunition the Democrats of New York city raised a howl over what they were pleased to term Superintendent Porter's partisan census. The arguments they advanced in behalf of this plea were silly in the extreme. The unusual growth of Chicago, as shown by the census returns, was what mortifled certain New Yorkers. There is no doubt that Porter's enumeration was as correct as it was possible to make it. If he was bent on doctoring the population of large Democratic cities why didn't he try his hand on Chicago? But Democrats never argue within the line of reason.

However, Governor Hill, assisted by Tammany, got up a bluff scheme which is now being carried out-the enumeration of New York and Brooklyn, and desperate methods are being employed to make the count pan out. The Press, commenting on the subject, says:

One of its features is the double counting of residents of Brooklyn who do business or are employed in New York. They are counted here in thoir places of business, as there are names and witnesses to prove, and counted again in Brooklyn at their homes, Then thousands of people who live in New Jersey are also being entered upon the rolls of this novel and peculiar enumeration.

entered upon the rolls of this novel and peculiar enumeration.

Nor is the above all. The Republican living in an uptown district and engaged in business down town finds that he is pressed in to swell the quots of a down town Democratie ward. The whole proceeding is conducted in flagnant defiance of the principles of fairness and common sense, upon which previous state and national ceususes have been based. Whatever the published results of the present enumeration, they will fail to command credence or respect.

The population of cities is like the wealth of many men. It is the easiest thing in the world to "estimate" of population, but when the figures are added up the discrepancy is sometimes very startling. Many men are estimated to be worth millions, but when they die and their estates are administered there are not so many dollars to count,

The Albany Convention.

David R Hill and a select assortment of his henchmen assembled in Albany yesterday and did what everybody expected would be done. If Cleveland or his admirers hoped to make the least ripple on the placid waters of the Hill boom they must have been credulous indeed. They seem to have had the temerity to try it, however, and the consequence was that the Cooper Union protesters were sat upon so hard and so promptly that the subsequent proceedings interested them no more.

The entire proceedings were shamefully cut and dried. Hill was present directing his forces as though the office he was seeking was that of a ward constable. There was no dignity in his conduct or decency in his methods. Whether that portion of the Democracy that has opposed Hill so bitterly will submit to all the indignities that have been heaped upon them by this political ruffian remains to be seen. The worm may turn, but this not expected with any great degree of confidence.

Cleveland at Ann Arbor.

'Midst the blare of tin horns and the unearthly yells of two thousand university students, ex-President Cleveland and his entourge was welcomed at Ann Arbor, Michigan yesterday. It is singular that Hill should have chosen the same day on which to hold his Albany convention. Perhaps Cleveland is just as happy that the date was identical with his Michigan trip.

It is noted that the mayor of Ann Arbor presented the ex-President with the freedom of the city in a silver cas-

In the meantime Hill was receiving his presidential boom from the hands of his strikers and heelers' convention at Albany.

Ir was a decidedly mixed convention that met at St. Louis yesterday, composed of farmers, laborers, prohibitionits and what nots. The first discovery they made was that the treasury was empty, and that of the sum of $1,200 subscribed at Cincinnati, only one man had paid anything on his subscription. Nothing daunted, however, they took up a collection, and after a temporary organization adjourned until to-day.

Mr. Langston, in his address at G. A. R. hall last night, advanced some thoughts on the race question which are new to most people who have not given that question special thought, and doubtless new to many who thought they had studied it. It is to be regretted that every man and woman of culture in Wheeling could not have heard his argument.

Now come stories of the unhappy married life of Mrs. Frank Leslie and her English husband, Mr. William Wildobrother of the eccentric Oscar. It is not surprising. Mrs. Leslie was old enough to be Willie's mother, and Willie-well, from all surface indications, it seems that he was intent on securing some one to support him in magnificent case.

WHILE the Democratic house of Congress was haggling over the expense of sending the flour donation of Minneapolis to starving Russians, Philadelphia went to work and stocked the steamship Indiana with flour and provisions, and yesterday she started on her mission of mercy. The average Democratic economist is very small.

INVENTOR Edison turns out not to be so green after all. When the consolidation of his company with the Thompson-Houston was announced it was said that the great wizard was being skinned by Wall street sharpers. Mr. Edison, on the contrary, winks the other eye and says he is glad of it.

Delegates were elected in Indiana yesterday to district and state conventions to nominate delegates to Minneapolis, and it appears that the administration was thoroughly and effectually endorsed. President Harrison should feel gratified at this cordial endorsement from his native state

SENATOR PALMER, of Illinois, in replying to the suggestions of a friend as to his availability as a presidential candidate, says that Cleveland is the only man in the party worth considering. Besides, he believes he would not be in it under the most favorable circum-

THE committee appointed by the Presbyterian General Assembly to investigate the charges of heresy made against Dr. Briggs has decided against his removal. The General Assembly will now have to back down from its former position, or else go back on its committee.

WASHINGTON, PA., it is now fair to say, is "not in it" with us when it comes to shooting clay birds. She doesn't trot in our class. Wonder if anybody out there can shoot craps?

The robber who tried to hold up a train near Syracuse, New York, had the example of the late Democratic governor betore him, who stole a legislature.

BANDIT GARZA's band appears to have melted away, and as President Diaz has no opposition to his re-election, Mexico is happy once more.

HILL not only stole the New York legislature from the Republicans, but yesterday committed grand larceny in his

NEW YORK delegation a unit for Hill at Chicago. The Cooper Unnion boys must have "that tired feeling."

SAGE Democratic politicians in Washington are shaking their heads over the news from Albany.

What kind of a letter will Henry Watterson write to Hill now?"

In a lecture in New York, R. L. Garner claimed to be making headway in studying the monkey dialect. According to his observations, monkeys say no by a sign of the head, but they have no sign for yes. The monkey language varies in different parts of the world, and Mr. Garner is convinced that the monkeys of South Africa, as well as the Hottentots, have click sounds in their Hottentots, have click sounds in their speech. This science cannot be satisfactorily pursued with monkeys in captivity, so Mr. Garner will plunge into Africa to continue his investigations. The monkey is a volatile creature, and not easily cornered by the scientist. It was the opinion of the old Georgia darkey that the monkey can talk, but is too smart to do it; for if he_talked "white man have a hoe in his hand in

BIDWELL'S RELEASE.

The Influences that Secured the Bank of England Forger Ills Release. HARTFORD, CONN., Feb. 22 .- Austin Bidwell, the Bank of England forger, who arrived from England on the Etruria, reached his old home in Hartford, Conn., yesterday.
"I was released," said Mr. Bidwell,

"at 8 o'clock on Friday evening, Febru-ary 12, and in charge of the chief war-den of the prison I was hurried aboard the train and through to Liverpool where I was placed on board the Etruria. I was not permitted to stop anywhere or speak to anybody until I reached the steamer. Then the officer handed my ticket-of-leave to me, and I was for the first time in pinateen vers was for the first time in nineteen years at liberty. The official document accompanying my ticket-of-leave informed me that I must never again set foot in Great Britain or any of her colonies. The government gave me no clothing on my release. My friends furnished me the suit I am wearing. The only thing I received was six pounds cash, and my friends paid my passage to America. This was my compensation for nineteen years hard labor."

"What are your future intentions?" he was asked.
"I shall live quietly for a while until

"I shall live quietly for a while until "I shall live quietly for a while until I can arrange to make an honest living. I was in the lumber supply business in Chicago before the great fire, and it is possible that I may locate there again and start in business. My friends are anxious to assist me. Hereafter I shall keep to the straight path. I have had my lesson although it was more severe than was warranted by the facts."

"How do you account for your release?"

James G. Blaine, Grover Cleveland, James Russell Lowell and other eminent Americans and John Bright, the Marquis of Hartington and other prominent English gentlemen advocated my re-lease. But despite their great influence the English government hesitated, and I am satisfied the final acquiescence of the home secretary was due as much as anything to the persistent work of my prother, George, and my sister, Mrs.

Austin Bidwell was only twenty-five years of age when convicted. He was a member of the gang that forged notes and bills of exchange on the Bank of England in 1872 and 1873. He was arrested in Hayana, taken to England and there convicted August 18, 1873, to life imprisonment.
